The Prognostica de decubitu is known both as the pseudo-Hippocratic De esse aegrorum secundum lunam (Astronomia, De medicorum astrologia, etc.) and as the pseudo-Galenic De decubitu infirmorum ex mathematica scientia. It has also appeared under the name of Hermes Trismegistus with the title De decubitu infirmorum. Under the title De diebus decretoriis it has been ascribed to Pietro d'Abano as author; his name is associated with the text as translator.

It is attributed to Imbrasius of Ephesus in a Bodleian manuscript and was compiled in Egypt probably during the Ptolemaic period. Cf. S. Weinstock, in the Classical quarterly, v. 42, 1948, p. [41]-43.
